

Interwoven, We

Refrain: Interwoven, we are a family Forming patterns fine as our lives entwine.
The fabric born cannot be torn
And by all of us is worn with pride.

A single thread can be stretched and broken.
We must pass through the needle's eye.
One by one with pain unspoken
we are tested, we are tried.
Here from many spools unraveled
we have traveled to this place, different textured lives combining in our yearning to embrace. Refrain

And in friendship bound together
here our places are assured, joining in a shared endeavor
in communion with the Lord.
And the patterns glow and glisten as new threads are woven through.
As we learn to grow and listen
we're becoming ever new. Refrain
