

A Prayer to God

I know that many times I failed You, Lord.
Sometimes it seems that I don't care.
The many miles I've walked have led me here.
At times the road has brought despair.

As I gaze in the sky I feel You near,
though I don't see just what You see.
To You my life is all an open book,
but I don't feel like I am free.

You've given me all that I need in life.
The only thing that I can do is thank You for the gift of your precious Son,
and know the love that comes from You.
Without You, Lord, what could I do?
O help me, Jesus, to love You.

I want to be the best that I can be,
but sin keeps getting in the way.
I want to see things as You see them, Lord,
but I can't tell the night from day.

If only I would keep my eyes on You,
and not turn to the left or right.
Then maybe I could be a servant that's true,
someone who's pleasing in your sight,
a soul that truly shines your light,
a soul that truly shines your light.
