

Inside Out

Luke 18:10-14

Five people leading different lives stepped out into the street.
The doctor saw a woman who appeared to have sore feet.
The construction worker liked the bricks the different buildings had.
The mechanic heard a car pass with the muffler going bad.
That's the only thoughts they had.

The accountant wondered how much the parking meters grossed.
The merchant thought of which location she would like the most.
No-one really noticed any items other than their own,
each version of reality in one direction thrown.
So much more could be known!

Refrain: Inside out! I'll tell you now without a doubt.
If you wanna find out what life's about,
you gotta look inside out.
Inside out! Take it by the higher route.
If you wanna find out what life's about,
you gotta look inside out!

We are the sum of all our thoughts, the world to us our twin.
No more exists outside ourselves than what exists within.
As every personality includes the life it's had,
while one may never see the good, another sees no bad, another sees no bad. Refrain

Yet not all vision is acquired through just our eyes alone, but lifted from inside ourselves from a wisdom not our own.
Perhaps that's why if you should notice people and compare, there's some who live such simple lives, yet see God everywhere,
and see God everywhere! Refrain
