

The Beautiful People

Happy people on the billboard beckon us to play.
Join them on the sunny beaches. Hear them when they say,
“We are the beautiful people and we love you all.”

Eager faces on the T.V. share a secret gift.
Come and give your life some meaning. You deserve a lift.
“We are the beautiful people and we love you all.”

On a crowded subway lonely people guard their space.
Eyes averted sitting silent with a distant face.
While pictured on the walls above the god's are smiling down.
“Are you looking for love?”

In the street a drive by victim no more pain does feel.
On the walls the gang graffiti told him what was real.
While high above the smiling bill board gives its holy spiel'
“We are the beautiful people and we love you all.”
