

Til I see You Again

It is with great desire that I'm here with you this evening to share a meal and be with my closest friends.
'Cause in the bittersweet celebration of this season
there is so much I need to say and so little time to spend.

The time is drawing near; I will no longer be here and where I'm going you cannot come. You are not able.
But soon the day will come when we all meet as one
and once again you will be gathered at my table.

So take this bread and you shall never hunger.
Drink of the cup at the covenant of love.
And as often as you do this my friends
remember me 'til I see you again.

So love one another. Be a servant to your brother.
I will pray to my father to keep you.
And now that the end of my time is at hand
it grieves me to know I must leave you.

But I must go so I can send the helper to give you comfort, to help you remember. These words of life I say tonight my friends.
Remember me till I see you again.

You all will turn away I am so sad to say.
In my hour of need you will deny me.
My accusers will rejoice but I won't raise my voice
when my own people come against me to try me.

Sometimes when trials seem too hard to bear pray to the Father in my name and he'll be there to strengthen you, to see you through, my friends.
Remember me till I see you again.
Yes, I must go so I can send the helper
to give you comfort to help you remember.
So I'll say so long and take care my friends.
Remember me till I see you again.
